

November is National Adoption Month

A LETTER FROM THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

National Adoption Month: November — Did you know? And why is it important?

Adoption has touched almost everyone — personally, through extended family, a friend, team members, a neighbor raising grandchildren. Some very famous people were adopted — Steve Jobs, Alexander Hamilton, 50 Cent, Jesus. Adoption is beautiful. But it is born out of something broken — simultaneous gain and loss, joy and sorrow.

This month, we pause to honor everyone touched by adoption, and also recognize that pain accompanies the celebration. Often, the challenges we see in homes are a direct result of the loss a child has experienced. Maybe it was separation from a caregiver in infancy. Maybe it began even before that, with a difficult pregnancy. Or maybe it was later in childhood when everything familiar went away — schools, neighbors, friends. Those losses cannot be immediately processed. One of the things our team does best is help caregivers understand the depth of these losses, even if the children don't completely understand it themselves.

Texas has one of the highest adoption rates in the country. More than 6,000 children were adopted in the state last year, and we celebrate this. Children belong in families — not systems. Families are the backbone of our community, and the more children who are in loving families, the better.

At Chosen, we are relentless to that end for all children and vulnerable families. The 100,000 children per year in the US that languish in a system but are ADOPTABLE are worthy of our attention, worthy of a family. Together, we can change the trajectory of their lives.

During National Adoption Month, we will elevate some important voices, including stories like that of the Scotch Family. Be sure to listen in and learn! And we have a special surprise voice to be revealed in the coming days... stay tuned!

Best regards,

Jenni Lord
